The Wisdom of the Father.

It is especially fitting that the accident of date should inject into a strongly partisan and superheated political situation the centenary of Washington's Farewell Address. That remarkable document should at all times be deeply interesting to every true American; at such a period as this it deserves and will doubtless be accorded more of serious and respectful consideration than has ever before been given it, although it has always been regarded as among the most valuable of contributions to official literature. Prompted by no other motive than the public good, and fixed in his determination to retire to private life, George Washington wrote as one inspired; wrote for the people and conditions of today just as much as he did for the America of 1736. It might reasonably be supposed that the lapse of years and the social and industrial revolutions that have taken place since the physical Washington ceased to be would have wrought so much of change in our institutions as would make the valedictory of the first President antiquated and useless as a matter of fact, the words of the Nation's Father are as easily applicable today as they were a century ago. Whatever differences of opinion may exist as to certain features of the policy of the general government with Washington at its head, it will be universally admitted that Washing ton was American in every fibre. His Farewell Address places immortally on record sentiments with which every lover of free government will enthusiastically coincide. Who will not recognize the present value of Washington's advice when ne says that the unity of government is the support of tranquility at home, of peace abroad, of prosperity, and of that liberty which every American so highly prizes? He foresaw much that has been done in efforts to overthrow the unity of government in behalf of which he made so eloquent a plea, and prayed that the people to whose cause he had devoted his life, his fortune and his sacred honor should watch with jealous anxiety for the preservation of the national union; "discountenancing whatever may suggest even a suspicion that it can in any event be abandoned; and indignantly frowning upon the first dawning of every attempt to alienate any portion of our country from the rest, or to enfeeble the sacred ties which now link together the various parts." "For this," he continued, "you have every inducement of sympathy and interest. Citizens, by birth or choice, of a common country, that country has a right to concentrate your affections. The name of American, which belongs to you, in your national capacity, must always ex-

He therefore urged the people-and his tones are as clear and his arguments as convincing today as they ever were-to resist with care the spirit of innovation upon the principles of our government, no matter how specious the pretexts may be.

There is so much of sound and pe advice in the Farewell Address that, in making extracts therefrom, one is embarrassed by excess of riches. It is a coherent and logical and heart-touching petition for the growth and nourishment of the most unselfish patriotism; it should be read and reread and thoroughly understood by every being who prides himself upon lawful possession of the title of American Citizen.

The Remedy in Alexandria County.

According to a special dispatch to The Star from Richmond, Gov. O'Ferrall has pcinted out the way by which some of the undestrable conditions in Alexandria county may be eliminated. The governor does not appear to have given any encouragement to those who want the presecuting attorney to have a privately-paid assistant; he thinks it would be much better to institute impeachment proceedings against the coun ty officials whose failure to act is held responsible for the evil conditions. Undoubtedly proceedings under the statute, in nature of impeachment against any official, whether prosecuting attorney, sheriff or justice of the peace who proves recreant, would have a wholesome effect. But the citizens of Alexandria county will probably be of the opinion that the prosecution of the lawbreakers themselves should not be postponed until after punishment has been inflicted upon official connivance in their misdeeds. Retribution should fall simultaneously upon both sets

Mr. Ross and His Convictions.

The declination of Commissioner John W. Ross to even tacitly rest in accord with the Chicago platform is not surprising Commissioner Ross is the official representative of the conservative democrats of the national capital, and is, by his letter published exclusively in yesterday's Star. shoulder to shoulder with the conservative and thoughtful democracy of the entire country. It is perhaps possible that Mr. Ross could have stood on the financial plank of the Chicago structure had that been the only eccentricity perpetrated by the builders, but when it became apparent to him that the fundamental principles of good government were assailed and that the presidential candidate sympathized with the assaliants and would aid in the assault. then Commissioner Ross did what tens of thousands of other democrats have done. Of two evils Mr. Ross has chosen that which is least.

There is a general disposition to admire the design of the new one-dollar bills in spite of the unwarranted liberties which have been taken with facts in idealizing the Long bridge and the Potomac flats.

Mr. Addicks must by this time begin to suspect that he could have had more fun for his money by buying a steam yacht

Mr. Watson's Absence From Georgia Candidate Watson's criticism of Candidate Sewell is not confined to the fact that Mr. Sewall represents nearly everything against which the Bryanites are contending, but includes also the fact that Mr. Sewall has no strength among his own home people. And Mr. Watson cites the resuit of the state election in Maine, which shows, despite Mr. Sewall's candidacy for Vice President, a falling off in the democratic vote. That, in Mr. Watson's opinion, amply supports his demand that Mr. Sewall retire from the race.

A state campaign is in progress in Georgia. The populists have put up a ticket of their own, and are canvassing for it. The election takes place next month. One would suppose that Mr. Watson would seize the opportunity to exert himself to the utmost for this ticket. His own strength at home will be gauged by the ticket's strength. That is the test he has applied to Mr. Sewall in Maine. But instead of exerting himself in Georgia, he is touring in

THE EVENING STAR. the south and west, and addressing himself to voters who will not go to the polls until November.

Of course, Mr. Watson has had in view strengthening of the middle-of-the-road populists in states where the populists seem to hold the balance of power, and to prevent populistic fusion either with democrats or republicans on terms which will injure his vice-presidential candidacy. He has evidently accomplished something in this direction by his tour, but it seen:s that he cannot longer neglect with safety the Georgia campaign. Suppose next month's election shows a distinct loss in former populistic strongholds. Suppose the democratic vote is large, showing gains all over the state. Will it lie in Mr. Watson's mouth to cavil any longer at Mr. Sewall on the question of home support?

The democrats of Georgia are working for a big vote for their state ticket expressly to embarrass Mr. Watson in this way. They have never had a moment's doubt about carrying the state, but they not only in the south, but in the west, and silence the populistic claim that with Mr. Sewall out of the running Mr. Bryan would be greatly benefited. The truth is that neither Mr. Sewall nor Mr. Watson is a proper yokemate for Mr. Bryan in this race. The fight for free silver has no sort of show outside of a union of the west and south. Mr. Bryan is a western man, and enough of a populist to please all the populists of that section. He should therefore have had for a yokemate, not an eastern man of any kind, but some representative southern democrat, ardently for free silver, and strong in the admiration and affections of the southern people. Mr. Sewall is weak because the east is bitterly opposed to free silver. Mr. Watson is weak because he is not a representative of majority sentiment in the Tammany Bewails the Lack of Reform The silver democrats of New York in convention assembled at Buffalo were not satisfied with mere indorsement of the Chicago platform; they arraigned the administration of Gov. Morton in severe terms and have put their condemnation on record in the state platform. People who do not reside in New York, but who have watched the gradual evolution of good government in that state, will note with interest the arraignment in question, for it charges that "state taxes have been largely increased and the burdens of the people augmented. Instead of reforms which were promised there have been flagrant corruption and misrule. Instead of economy there has been prodigality. Instead of retrenchment there has been increased expend-

At this distance from New York there is no apparent basis for the accusative statements of the platform. It is probably true that the state taxes have increased under the Morton administration, but such an increase is not necessarily an evil. In the 'good old days" when the bosses had absolute control the taxpayers did not contribute so much as they now do, but it should be remembered that in these times the taxpayers get approximately their money's worth, while only a little while ago the great bulk of their contributions went almost directly into the pockets of the practical politicians whose moanings and wailings have given to the Buffalo convention the appearance of a wake. It is almost amusing to have Tammany complain that promised reforms have not made their appearance and that flagrant corruption and misrule have been stalking all over the state, chaperoned by Gov. Morton. The prodigality complained of resolves itself upon investigation into sensible liberality which accomplishes something and which is, by honest people, infinitely to be preferred to the smaller appropriations and reign of King Tammany. Political platforms are frequently meaningless. Buffalo platform is an absurdity.

No Submarine Telephony Yet.

A Russian electrician holds out the hope that one of his recent discoveries will make possible telephonic communication between the United States and the countries of Europe. The probabilities are that conversation between people in Washington and other people in London is not yet, by several years. In some respects the average commercial telephone in use in this country is inferior to the European article. but we are well in the lead in the matter of long-distance telephony. After vast expenditures of brains and other varieties of energy we have so perfected the application of electricity in the transmission of sound that it is possible to hear distinctly the tones of the average human voice over a wire fifteen hundred miles long. Were elopment, be entirely useless. Induction may be controlled when the wires are on land, but it is not commercially possible for a wire to be insulated sufficiently to make long-distance sub-aquatic conversation a success. Some day, though, an electrical genius may appear, clothed with power to defeat the vibratory interference that now interposes an apparently insurmountable obstacle, but from all we can hear of M. Kildischewsky's invention there is no reason for imagining that the genius has arrived.

Whichever way the cat jumps in the sixth Maryland district the city of Washngton will be in a position to smile. Both of the candidates for Congress come from the county immediately adjoining the District of Columbia and both of them are well acquainted with the needs of this section. Outside of politics and the national policies at issue and considering only the local concerns of this city, Washington can applaud the election of either Capt. McDon ald, the republican candidate, or Blair Lee, the democratic. It is for the capital a case of heads I win, tails you lose.

There is no reason to complain of an oc casional warm day as "unseasonable." Even the oldest inhabitant does not intimate that September ever produced icebergs in this latitude.

Mr. Bryan will notice that while the voting power in the District of Columbia is very much handicapped, the applause of his adherents is as loud as it is anywhere else in the country. There are renewed evidences of a determination in New York to put forth enough different kinds of democratic ticket to match every shade of political opinion

The persistency with which Herr Most is supporting the gold standard is engendering the suspicion that he is in the employ of the silver capitalists.

Only one hundred and thirty-one men are reported to be at work today on the new city post-office building.

The populists refuse to see why the free silver people should strain at a Watson and swallow a Bryan.

Mr. Sewall is sure that even Tom Watson, hal he been a resident of Maine, could have

Mr. Watson insists that Mr. Sewall has had his share of the fun of being a can-Mr. Hanna has been eminently successful in booming Canton, Ohio, as an excursion Mr. Bryan hopes to be with us once again on the Fourth of March.

THE WEEK. Complete returns of the Maine election show that Powers (rep.) for governor, received 83,573 votes; Frank (dem.), 34,841; republican plurality, 48,732, against 12,503 in 1892. Senator Allen sent to Mr. Bryan a letter notifying him of his nomination for the presidency by the people's party, and assuring him that an indorsement of the populist platform was not required. Chairman Butler of the populist convention mailed to Thomas E. Watson the notification of his nomination for the vice presidency. Candidate Bryan continued his tour through a part of Tennessee, North Carolina and Virginia. The New York democratic convention at Buffalo nominated John Boyd Thacher for governor, and indorsed the platform adopted at Chicago; William F. Sheehan resigned as national committeeman, and Frank Campbell was elected his successor. The silver democrats of Connecticut controlled the state convention at Hartford, which nominated candi-dates for state officers and an electoral doubt about carrying the state, but they feel that if they can pile up their majority pretty high it will cripple the Watson boom the sixth Maryland district republican convention, after a very exciting session. Senator Smith of New Jersey published the announcement that, being unable to reconcile his views with the platform of the democratic national convention, he would resign from the chairmanship of the state committee. The battle ship Texas, while entering Newport harbor, ran upon a rock opposite the torpedo station, but was pulled off uninjured. Several officers of the steamer Laurada were arrested at Wilmington, Del., and held as witnesses in the case against Capt. Murphy, charged with filibustering. The State Department is investigating the case of Charles Govin, an American newspaper correspondent, executed in Cuba. Four persons were killed and a number hurt in a wreck on the Cincinnati, Hamilton and Dayton, near Connersville, Ind. Two men and twenty-five horses perished in a fire in Milwaukee, Wis. The gunboat Bancroft sailed for Turkish waters. Burglars dynamited the safe in the store of J. W. Brown at Falls Church. Va. The deaths of the week included Lieut. C. F. Norton, U. S. N., in Chicago: Dr. Charles H. Chalkley of the faculty of the Medical University at Richmond, Va.; Fire Commissioner Austin E. Ford, in New York, who was editor of the Freeman's Journal, and was always prominent in Irish affairs; Capt. George S. Hoyt of the army, at Helena, Mont., and Enoch Pratt of Baltimore.

By the arrest of Tynan, Bell and the other dynamiters, the Scotland Yard auhorities in London believe they have crushed an extensive Fenian conspiracy. one of whose objects was the assassination of the czar during his trip to England. The guard of Turkish troops on luty at the sultan's palace in Constantinople was forcibly disarmed and replaced by others. It was reported that a Mussulman movement against the sultan had been started. The followers of Don Carlos threaten to make trouble for the Spanish government. The Anglo-Egyptian Nile expedition, under Gen. Sir Herbert Kitchener. pedition, under Gen. Sir Herbert Kitchener, arrived at Barja-on-the-Nile. Forty-five passengers on a Rhine steamer were thrown into the river by the collapse of a gang plank at Buesingen, and several were drowned. Thirty persons were injured by a collision on a street railway in Valencia, Spain. Twenty-six hundred Spanish troops embarked from Barcelona for Cuba. The London St. James Gazette suggested that England, the United States and Italy form an alliance to oppose the Russian combinaan alliance to oppose the Russian combina-tion which seks to prevent interference with the Turkish despot.

In the District. Because of the alleged dissatisfaction on the part of large stockholders of the Eckington-Belt system of street railroads over the losses in the boulevard scheme between this city and Baltimore, it was announced that the equipment of the former road with compressed air motors would be postponed. A definite understanding was had between the health officer and the garbage contractor over future disposal of such garbage as cannot be incinerated; the Commissioners urged the contractor to hasten the erection of the second crema-tory plant; a rumor was current to the effect that the contractor had been offered a large sum for the sale of his contract. For the second time the trial of the Jack son City gambling cases was postponed. Preparations were completed for the Bryan demonstration; Mr. Bryan himself declining to speak from the steps of the Capitol, the old base ball rark was secured for the meeting. The board of school trustees, having already determined upon a system of penmanship to be taught in the schools failed to agree in the selection of a text book. Superintendent Stoutenburgh pre-sented his annual report to the Commis-sioners, showing the condition of the work house and other institutions under his charge to be entirely satisfactory. Veterans of the late war who fought on opposite sides met in fraternal union on their way to the battlefield of Antietam to dedicate a monument there to the Philadelphia brigade; they were welcomed by Com-missioner Truesdell and held a camp fire. Lord Chief Justice Russell visited the city. Rev. John C. Bowers, recently called to the pastorate of St. Mark's Lutheran Church, assumed charge of his new duties. A tournament was held under the auspices of the Washington croquet clubs, which was attended by a number of expert players from northern cities; Sackett Duryea, a fifteen-year-old local player, carried off the honors. L. H. Schneider, for more than sixty years identified with busines life in this city, died.

Ripans Tabules.

Mr. Chas. E. Johnson, manager gents' furnishing goods department, "The Fair," 7th and Franklin aves., St. Louis, says: "Several years ago I was troubled with an azgravated case of dyspepsia, and, of course, the first thing i did was to consult a physician. As I had always enjoyed the best of health I was worried a good deal—and my only desire was to get well as speedily as I could. I took regularly all the medicines as my doctor prescribed them. I must say that in a short time I felt all right, thought I was cured, and stopped taking the medicine. But it wasn't long before I was feeling as budly as ever, and again I had recourse to the doctor. This kept up for some time, until at last I made up my mind I would quit doctoring and try some of the remedies I saw advertised from day to day. Well, this was worse than ever, and in most cases I didn't know what to do, and made up my mind that I would have to pass the remainder of my days in suffering. Well, to cut a long story short, I had read so much of Ripans Tabules that I concluded I would give them a good trial. It said one would give relief, and I thought if one could give relief, and I thought if one could give relief, and I thought if one could give relief a whole lot might cure me. I purchased two boxes from a druggist for one dollar, and when I had finished them I was feeling better than I had for years. I continued to use them and today believe I am a well man. and today believe I am a well man.

Once in a great while I do have a slight touch of the old malady, but a few of the Tabules fix that all right. I generally keep a box in my house."
